MIDI Product Development Excels at their New Medical Center of Excellence

Ronkonkoma, NY January 1, 2017 –

The owners, brothers Christopher, left, and Gregory Montalbano, say MIDI is now in a better location.

MIDI, a global leader in medical product development has been operating out of their new Medical Center of Excellence, centrally located on Long Island, within Smithtown's Village of the Branch for over a year now. MIDI shares the 15,000-square-foot building with a diagnostic imaging center for Northwell Health, formerly North Shore-LIJ Health System. The 15,000 square foot facility significantly assists in facilitating MIDI's rapid growth and presence in the medical/healthcare product development industry. The site was chosen based upon its pristine location, professional environment, and proximity to their collaborating partner Stony Brook University Medical Center and the school's Center for Biotechnology. In addition, it provides MIDI easier access to Boston, where the company finds many of its larger medical industry clients. "The location is key as far as having access to the Boston area through the ferry," said Christopher Montalbano. "Those things are important." MIDI continues to grow and is typically working on six to seven products at a time, all in different stages of development, Christopher Montalbano said. "What I really enjoy about this industry is that we get to work with so many groups on so many different programs that you never get bored," Gregory Montalbano said.
